

Dear ISOCARP Member,

I am pleased to share with you that newly established department of City and Regional Planning at Lahore College for Women University (LCWU), Lahore ,Pakistan will celebrate the World Town Planning Day with an international event. A delegation of Japanese Experts on Independent Living and Inclusive City Planning for physically handicapped citizens will come to address this seminar. The City and Regional Planning Department at LCWU is an initiative of the BM/ND of ISOCARP (Pakistan) and it is first of its kind of departments in the history of Pakistan where Female Town Planners will be produced to bridge the gap of gender balance in development.

LCWU is Pakistan's largest Women University having more than 10,000 students and over 500 faculty and staff members. The university is known as Pride of Asia for strengthening the role of women in leadership, education and research. City and Regional Planning Department was established at LCWU in 2012 and the first session of BS and MS has started from October 2012. The Department will celebrate the activities of World Town Planning Day starting with International Seminar to be held on 5th November at LCWU.

Best regards

atiq
