COOL AND CONNECTED: PLANNING BODØ THROUGH URBAN FLOWS

As defined in the agenda of the 54th ISOCARP World Planning Congress, the future of civilisation now more than ever depends on the way we plan and manage our cities and towns. While this agenda calls for aggregate efforts to rethink sustainability, mitigation, resilience and adaptation, how we perceive urban form and urban flows appears as the major strategic fields of action in navigating the challenges of our urban future. Thus, the Young Planning Professionals’ Workshop in Bodø will search for innovative and smart solutions to navigate planning through diverse forms of urban flows. The three case study areas of the workshop offer the potential to rethink urban flows based on connections and mobilities for a cooler and more connected Bodø.

Concluding Priorities and Recommendations

1. Preserving and restoring local identity. This priority involves identifying and protecting the unique cultural, historical, and environmental features of the city. It also includes the protection of local ecosystems and landscapes, which are essential for maintaining the city’s identity.

2. Enhancing economic opportunities. By developing a diversified economy, the city can create new job opportunities and attract investment. This can be achieved through the promotion of local businesses and the development of new industries.

3. Establishing resilient and sustainable communities. This involves creating communities that are able to adapt to and recover from natural disasters, as well as reducing their impact on the environment. This can be achieved through the development of green spaces and the promotion of sustainable practices.

4. Improving the quality of life. This priority involves creating a safe, healthy, and accessible environment for all residents. This can be achieved through the development of infrastructure and public spaces, as well as the promotion of social well-being.

CASE STUDY 3

BØLGEN: “A WAVE OF CHANGE”

"REDISCOVERING THE HEART OF BODO"

To be able to come up with ideas for development, we need to consider the strengths and weaknesses of the site. We also need to understand the history and culture of the site to ensure that the new development respects the existing character.

RESOURCES: Developing a vision that can enhance the site’s potential. Identifying the key resources and opportunities for the site.

IDENTITY: Making a connection to the heritage of the site. Ensuring that the new development respects the existing character.

CONNECTIVITY: Developing a sustainable transport network. Linking the site to the wider area and facilitating access to the site.

DIVERSITY: Creating a variety of uses and activities. Ensuring that the site is accessible to all members of the community.

The climate in Bodø is characterized by severe weather conditions, with cold winters and warm summers. As a result, when you visit Bodø, you can experience the natural beauty of the area and enjoy the outdoor activities available.
Cool Planning in New Kristiansand: A Sustainable Polycentric Urban Model

Kristiansand is in the process of amalgamate/merging with two neighbouring municipalities west of Kristiansand: Søgne and Songdalen. How Kristiansand can develop as a polycentric city? How can these three centres complement and strengthen each other to make the new municipality not only more competitive, but also more dynamic and interesting for the inhabitants? Exploring the different characteristics and identities of the three centres as a basis for developing a polycentric city is important, besides reducing the mental distance between these centres through new ways of transport and communication. The guiding strategic principles include major focus on environmental, economic and social sustainability, climate change and adaptation.

ISOCARP | Young Planning Professionals
As a tribute to the ISOCARP’s 50th Anniversary and all young planning professionals who has taken role in reinventing planning in the 51st Congress, it is decided to publish the YPP Reports under the heading of

"Words have power, they can speak to the soul, launch us into action. Words can also deceive us. Some words poison our minds with false promises. Some buzz in our heads until we’re lulled into a state of unconsciousness. Their repeated and heedless use a sedative which makes us numb for their power. We feel comfortable uttering or hearing those seemingly harmless words, derived of all meaning. They give us only positive feelings. This is very much the case in spatial planning and design. We are as apt as any other profession to bring ourselves into a professional coma with a series of platitudes and buzzwords. And let us be honest, the 51th ISOCARP congress ‘Cities save the world. Let’s reinvent planning’ was no exception to that tendency. Or don’t we need ‘innovative planning solutions for a sustainable future’? What is sustainable? Try to visualise it. What do you see? Shrubberies? Native Americans utilising every bit of the bison they killed? Green labels? The ancient ways of our ancestors? Young planning professionals gathered at the ISOCARP congress felt confused, taken aback, even battered by an overload of buzzwords. When scattered across the earth again they did go on the streets of places they’re attached to and took pictures of situations that are in their eyes exemplary for those words. An exercise in words and pictures to give critical reflection on overly used planning terms, providing the terms with operational value, action value, trying to visualise them. The images and their explanation are presented throughout this book and with those images that launch a thousand ships in our minds we can proudly stammer those words: towards sustainable planning solutions for an innovative future."

"enjoy the walk, we just started.."

BUZZ will be the platform for young planners to express their "words" through action
Sharing the programme knowledge hub through different mediums brings an improved perspective on the outcomes of the programme to be utilized in professional practice and education.

SPECIAL SESSION - ISOCARP AND THE NEXT GENERATION OF PLANNERS
as part of the 54th ISOCARP World Planning Congress

This special session is designed to explore the future of planning profession with the involvement of the youngest generation. Since 1991, ISOCARP offers various platforms to engage young planning professionals in activating knowledge for better cities. Among these platforms are Young Planning Professionals’ Workshops, Intensive Training Programmes, Mentoring, Publications and Awards. After a brief introduction, the results and examples of those programmes will be shared with the audience including the results of the Young Planning Professionals National Workshop in Xi’An, China, organised jointly with Urban Planning Society of China and Xi’An Urban Planning and Design Institute. This years’ winners of the Student Awards will present their awarded researches. The students from the Norwegian University of Life Sciences, who also took part in Kristiansand Workshop, will share their experiences from the workshop on becoming professional planners and developers. The session will be concluded with a discussion with the audience and participants about how ISOCARP can serve better the new generation, and about the future of planning through the fresh eyes of the young. The session will be open to the public and we invite the citizens to take part as well.

Moderated by Zeynep Gunay and Slawomir Ledwon
YPPS AS CONGRESS TEAM MEMBERS

as part of the 54th ISOCARP World Planning Congress

In addition to the participation in the YPP workshop, 6 of the selected Young Planners were offered an opportunity to become a Support Congress Team Member. This means that – both before and during the congress – they involved in the preparation and running of and reporting on the congress activities. This exceptional opportunity shall allow the Young Planners to get more seriously involved in the entire congress.
YPPS IN SPECIAL SESSIONS
PLANNERS FOR CLIMATE ACTION
as part of the 54th ISOCARP World Planning Congress

The session will present the new initiative of UN-Habitat related to Climate Action. It will present the global climate challenges experienced on the planet, and current actions on advocacy, capacity-building and research. Also the session will include the voices of young professionals. 2 Young Planning Professionals, Tjark GALL and Anne WELCH were selected to express their perceptions on the Climate Change challenge and the view from young professionals.

Mr. Roxy Binno, Planning and Urban Design Expert, Ms. Sanaa Abdullah Khalaf, the Head of Urban Design Unit, Mr. Saif Ali Alsayed, Head of Planning Research Section, Mr. Qamar Redha Fadhlan, Head of Human Resources Development Section of the Dubai Municipality, met with the ISOCARP President Ric Stephens and ISOCARP VP YPP Zeynep Gunay on November 26, 2017 in Dubai to start collaboration in YPPs and ITPs.
9th Session of World Urban Forum (WUF9) Side Event:
Urban Underground Space for the Cities of The Future
Organised by International Tunnelling and Underground Space Association’s Committee on Underground Space (ITACUS) on the occasion of the 9th Session of World Urban Forum (WUF9), Kuala Lumpur, 8 February 2018

“President Ric Stephens and VP Young Planning Professionals Zeynep Gunay in ITACUS side event, Underground Spaces for the Cities of the Future. The side-event on Thursday 8 February, gathered over 70 people who were welcomed by ITACUS co-chair Han Admiraal. Together with ISOCARP, the International Society of City and Regional Planners, ITACUS is running the Young Professionals Think Deep Programme. The aim of this programme is to help cities look at planning issues by enabling a dialogue between professionals who work together for a week, focussing on a concrete urban planning case. This tool not only helps cities because it generates multiple solutions, the awareness of underground space is raised among professionals. In that sense, the tool is all about capacity building. ITACUS activity group leader Petr Salak and ISOCARP vice-president YPP, Zeynep Gunay, shared their enthusiasm with the audience on this programme.”
9th Session of World Urban Forum (WUF9) Side Event: Capacity Building for the New Urban Agenda - Education for Planners

9th Session of World Urban Forum (WUF9) UN-Habitat Event: Network of Urban Labs
Organised by UN-Habitat on the occasion of the 9th Session of World Urban Forum (WUF9), Kuala Lumpur, 12 February 2018

“The focus of this Event would be to highlight this global initiative for sustainable development from which developed and developing countries are benefiting, raising awareness of the need to connect expertise and sources of funding to support urban sustainable development. The Global Network of Labs for sustainable development represents a powerful tool to guide public and private stakeholders through the process of creating a vision, developing a strategy and implementing specific projects that contribute to more compact, socially inclusive, better integrated and connected cities and territories that foster sustainable urban development and are resilient to climate change. In order to implement the Sustainable Development Goals and the New Urban Agenda, there is a need to scale up and multiply the impact of the Network of the Labs, by bringing new relevant organizations to agree on the methodology and the implementation strategies.”

Zeynep Gunay, VP YPP, contributed to UN-Habitat event on Network of Urban Labs moderated by Rogier van den Berg (UN-HABITAT Project Leader of the Urban Planning and Design LAB) with ISOCARP members Shipra Narang Suri (UN-HABITAT Director of the Planning and Design Branch), Eric Huybrechts (Global Network of Urban Planning Agencies) and Bert Smolders (Shelter Program Director at Arcadis). Other panelists include: Trudy Elliott (Chief Executive The Royal Town Planning Institute), Kate Owens (WRI Ross Center for Sustainable Cities), Jean-Paul Hitipeuw (Creative Industries/Network of Labs/Urban CODES), Simone Rots (INTI - International New Town Institute) and Francisca Rojas (Inter-American Development Bank).
